Diana Green

Diana F. Green received her MFA from the University of California, Irvine. She taught in a private studio and directed a youth ballet company in Maryland for 15 years. She came to Alabama to run the dance program at Huntingdon College in 1992. There she founded the first P-12 certification program in dance in the state of Alabama. In 2004, she moved to the Alabama State Council on the Arts as arts in education program manager. Aside from administrating the AIE grants program, she designs and teaches integrated arts curriculum for K-12 and consults for school systems, administrators, teachers, and artists to strategically plan, implement, collaborate, and evaluate arts programs in Alabama schools. While working at the Council, she became involved in advocacy for arts education and in partnership with the Alabama Arts Alliance, helped coordinate three statewide arts education Summits.

Ms. Green, in partnership with the Arts Alliance and the State Department of Education, is part of a team to facilitate the Artistic Literacy Consortium, a collective impact initiative. The Consortium is a large group of stakeholders sharing the mission and a plan “to provide fully funded, high-quality arts education that enlightens, inspires, and develops in every Alabama student the creative and innovative thinking necessary to ensure college and career readiness”.

This program is made possible by a grant from the Alabama State Council on the Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts
